NETWORK ELEMENT MANAGEMENT

5   ABSTRACT

Techniques for managing network elements in a network are provided. A network element dependent module is utilized to provide functions for managing a specific type of network element. The network element dependent module can be for a network element type and software version. The network element application can manage new network elements,

10   even those with new features, without requiring an update to the network management application.